Hamster Kombat Airdrop: Everything You Need to Know

On Thursday, September 26, the HMSTR token will be listed on cryptocurrency platforms, marking the start of the Hamster Kombat Airdrop.

The well-known Telegram game, Hamster Kombat, is making its cryptocurrency exchange debut this month after experiencing strong player demand. More significantly, millions of players will get HMSTR tokens as part of one of the largest airdrops of 2024, which will accompany this listing. Millions of users will not be able to get the airdrop, though, due to some intriguing qualifying requirements that the organisation has placed.

Since users had been playing the game for months, this HMSTR Airdrop was much anticipated. To obtain the most tokens, individuals in one case tapped nonstop for hours or even months. Since HMSTR is so well-liked, a lot of people believe that its price will rise in line with the excitement, providing holders with substantial profits. The feature's debate will determine whether or not that occurs. The official team has so far disclosed the essential information regarding this airdrop.

Hamster Kombat Airdrop Launch Date

In a matter of months, this tap-to-earn game attracted over 300 million users thanks to its user-friendliness and incentives system. Investors were kept on their toes after months of playing and collecting these game coins due to the several delays in the token launch. On September 26, the HMSTR coin will finally be launched on Binance and other prominent cryptocurrency exchanges. On the same day, 60 billion tokens will be distributed through the Hamster Kombat Airdrop. This is a really important development.

□ The results of Season 1 have been finalized:

□ Over 300 million people have joined Hamster Kombat since March 26, 2024, 131 million qualified for the airdrop on September 26th and around 2.3 million were banned as cheaters.

Another contentious matter that has caused the HMSTR hashtag to trend on X is the official team's decision to share eligibility photos with each player. The implementation of a system to prevent cheating is the primary driver of this change. After reviewing each player's stats, the squad cut ties with cheats in the airdrop.

Many players have taken to using massagers and other physical and artificial instruments to speed up the tapping process in order to earn more money in the game's basic tap-to-earn feature. In spite of the lack of regulations or restrictions, hundreds of people have arrived at X to express their dissatisfaction with the abrupt modifications that have rendered their month-long efforts futile.

Key Features of Hamster Kombat

With 100 billion tokens available at launch, the Hamster Kombat team is introducing the HMSTR coin. Most significantly, the community members receive 75% of that. After the second season premieres, the remaining 15% will be eligible for the next airdrop.

The anti-cheating programme has already notified all players of their eligibility with a snapshot. Only 131 million out of 300 million customers are still eligible for the HMSTR airdrop, while 2.3 million have been blocked. Many were disappointed to learn that not even qualifying candidates would get their full allocation. But we're doing this to try to stop a market collapse.

With a ten-month vesting period in mind, the player will only receive 88.75% of their token from Hamster Kombat. June or July of next year will see the release of the remaining 11.25%. The fact that the airdrop gives priority to micro-influencers and referral givers raises more eyebrows than it does to the other participants.

Conclusion

The Hamster Kombat airdrop has been postponed many times, but it will eventually go live on September 26. Participation in gaming will earn 131,000,000 HMSTR tokens, or 60 billion in total. But this user count comes after an anti-cheating mechanism banned 2.3 million users. Curiously, out of 100 billion, the Hamster Kombat team has decided to airdrop 75 billion. On top of that, 15% will be airdropped in the next second season.
